

Registration for CLAYSS Online Courses 2013 now open

Pre-registration for "Development of Service-Learning Projects" and "Service-Learning in Higher Education" online courses will open in December. The first cohort will be conducted from April to July 2013.

"Development of Service-Learning Projects" is destined to authorities and teachers in all levels of education, community leaders, and members of community organizations who want to develop or improve service-learning projects. "Service-Learning in Higher Education", on the other hand, is focused on this particular level. It aims to promote new practices and review those already in place, as well as to institutionalize service-learning across departments and single courses, applying unified quality standards.

Our distance education courses can be made more accessible for educative institutions and community organizations through discounts and scholarships depending on the amount of people to sign up. The course can also be complemented with other faculty professional development options, such as on-site conferences or even evaluation via internet or on-site.
